

Rabies Investigation Flowchart

Human Bitten by Animal

After the 10 day confinement period an inspector from the health department observes the animal involved in the incident. If the animal is healthy and active after this time period then there is no threat of the transmission of rabies. If the animal becomes sick or dies during the observation period then testing for rabies may have to be conducted. Based on the results of the test treatment may or may not be needed.